Comments: It's clear that Lake Tarleton is a precious resource to the public. Ecologically, recreationally, and culturally this area is unique and worth a fight protecting. While some of the proposed work from the USDA would undoubtedly benefit the area (invasive removal, access improvement) the negatives and risks to this region are far too great to go forward with this reckless project. To move forward with this project would mark a promise broken to the public that worked so hard to ensure this land would remain pristine and untouched in the first place. We ask once more that you consider swiftly working with the Tarleton Coalition to preserve this land and protect this special place. Thank you for reading, and we look forward to hearing from your office soon.
