Comments: Hello and thank you for your work protecting our forests.

I am writing in strong opposition to any logging. (There is ample private land to harvest lumber to meet human needs.) Since I retired and started to focus on climate change I have learned forest management is best done by leaving the trees to grow as they will.

Not only do humans exchange vital gases with trees but trees sequester carbon.

All of this (namely, impact of climate change) will come to bear after I have passed but we must consider people who will live on and the forests themselves: Precious and we never get back what is lost.

Thank you for considering my remarks
