Comments: I am in total opposition to any and all pollution of our beautiful planet. This (among millions of others) is one of those instances. The US Forest Service needs to do their job and do it quickly in protecting and defending such precious places! Haven't we done enough to destroy our Nation's heritage? This and all landscape for that matter isn't just ours, it belongs to a vast variety of animals and plants, animals and plants that depend on a healthy environment for their very survival! Deny East Boulder Mine's expansion, period. As one person on here stated, who will end up doing the clean-up, and why should there have to be a clean up to begin with? Hopefully someday humans will evolve enough to merit the distinction of being human. Let's stop destroying and instead motivate ourselves to stem our greedy ways, to stem our self-serving attitudes to stem our short-sightedness and do what is right for the planet and our natural world before it's too late!
