Comments: There's a growing movement around the globe post COVID to nourish the land we all grow from and care for it to provide us abundance. We can build swales, hugelculture mounds, and the like to restore our soils and grow plants which can then retain the very water they need, preventing the chaos we're witnessing today.

I, and a number of seasoned professionals in these fields who've restored soils and ecosystems all over the world would be honored to assist in this much needed renovation, instead of the usual conversations here let's (re)invent something new?
