Comments: Plane access to wilderness designated areas is already allowed.

There is a primitive airstrip at Cube Cove that consists of nothing manmade. Allowing the dirt runway to continue to exist is nothing different than the Forrest Service allowing safe access to other wilderness areas in the form of docks or moorage at Forrest Service cabins.

The multi-use purpose of Wilderness includes the ability for men and women to have "unsurpassed opportunities for outdoor recreation including hunting, fishing, hiking, and camping." Without access, whether by boat or plane, to Wilderness, that becomes a hollow objective.

Keep and maintain safe access to the Cube Cove Wilderness area, the Cube Cove dirt runway, as part of the restoration project.
