Comments: The arrogance of humans! This area needs to heal naturally and not inundate the location with mechanized tools. Cube Cove is the disaster that it is because of humans and their arrogance! Humans are not needed to make trails, animals take care of that. National Forest workers need to have a minimal presence and block as much human contact as possible. This land really was NOT "made for you and me!" People need to listen to the third verse!!

Thank you for reading my submission and I truly hope Indigenous people and the world of nature can see this area returned to original status without humans making it worse!
