Comments: Because Cube Cove is already healing from the damage caused by past logging, roads, and associated impacts, and the Forest Service's massive "restoration" program using heavy equipment is inappropriate for the Kootznoowoo Wilderness and I think that the FS's plan violates the letter and spirit of the Wilderness Act-as it will entail extensive use of chainsaws, helicopters, motor vehicles, and other motorized equipment, plus tree cutting, placing woody debris in riparian areas, and other proposed actions.

Allow it to fully recover on its own by allowing time and natural processes to heal past damage.

Why not have the Forest Service analyze a wilderness-compatible plan if it chooses active restoration, such as one that uses non-motorized hand tools rather than chainsaws and heavy equipment?

Reclaimed roads should not be converted to trails, but if the agency does convert them, though, it must mitigate the impacts on wildlife from increased human use to preserve it for the future.
