Comments: I am a nurse and care for all living things. This appears to me as a misguided effort to control nature again. Please let nature take care of her planet, the earth, and the creatures that inhabit it. Cube Cove appears to be recovering slowly. By using all the power tools you have, more of the creatures who are trying to adapt to the area will be disturbed and many of them killed. Is there some great urgency to reshape the Cove? I think not. If the urgency is to create jobs, then slower work may be a good answer. This will provide the work and, preserve what nature created and protect the animals and birds that are there now.
