Comments: It is well known that trees are "the lungs of the world" -- they emit oxygen and take in carbon dioxide. Cutting trees for quick profit as logging industries do is killing the planet very effectively. This must stop.

There are many options for building that do not involve timber. These need to be explored and put into play. It involves change, which industry (and people) are afraid of, but the alternative is no more clean air. Trees also help maintain clean water, a necessity for every living thing.

Please take all of this into consideration when making any decision to log or clearcut. Every tree makes a difference, and you cannot breathe or drink money -- we need air and water.

Thank you.
