

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/15/2022 1:56:09 PM

First name: Don

Last name: Ostler

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Mature and old growth forests are critical for fighting climate change through carbon sequestration and by cleansing our air through photosynthesis. The process of logging and then re-planting trees in a plantation emits a substantial amount of carbon. Recovering that carbon will take 50 - 100 years and then that plantation most likely will be logged again.

Forests (not tree plantations) are vital for human well-being.