Comments: I'm writing in support of permit approval for establishing these new huts. As a Seattle local and avid backcountry skier, the ability to access this beautiful terrain throughout the winter is exciting. Even more so when doing so under human power. Compared to nearby states with similar alpine environments, Washington's options for this type of shelter supporting winter recreation are very slim. I'd love to see our state offer more options like this (and I can't wait to visit when we do)!
