Comments: Please save the Old Growth Forests of the United States. There are so few left. They have precious DNA resources, and they provide Carbon Sequestration critical for future human life on the planet. We certainly don't need to destroy everything remaining on our planet. Let's leave something for future generations to study, enjoy, and rely on for the health of the planet and the health of our own species. These old growth forests are critical and rare. Please do the right thing. Think of your children, their children, their children.

Sincerely,

Karen Petersen Mehra
