Comments: My name is Edwin Miller and I am a Salt Lake City, Utah resident, originally from Oregon. Both states have incredible old growth forests, from Douglas Fir to Piñon-Juniper on public lands. Protection of these ancient, incredible forests is paramount not only for protection against climate change but also for public enjoyment. As a proud young American, there is nothing I would like to see more than the continued protection of wild spaces in this country. Old growth forests are an integral part of the tremendous part of the natural beauty of this country. Preserving them will be a forward-thinking step that will be appreciated by posterity.
