Comments: To those deciding,

If there was ever a time in humanities history to STOP the onslaught of nature for our personal "needs", it is now. We sit at the brink of our extinction. It is folly to believe we can go forward as we have for the last 2000 years where our human needs trump the needs of the planet. The resources we depend upon are finite and becoming increasingly more so. We are the species to stop the extinction. We can change.

Allow the remaining old forest to stand - for the sake of all of life on this planet.
