Comments: I agree with the need to protect the wildlife and environment, but closing our access to enjoy these two very things is not the way to do it. I oppose the proposed travel plan part with the closures being on the March 31st date. If a closure is absolutely needed, it needs to be later in the year in May, not during the heart of the riding season.

Snowmobiling demographic has changed to older and more responsible riders, this type of closure is not needed as the enthusiasts today are respecting wildlife and the environment more than ever.

I just see this stripping away my rights to public land. I've been riding these areas for 20 years and never seen a grizzly bear or even a grizzly bear track. I'm also a avid hunter so I know what their track looks like. I usually ride these areas till there's just not enough snow to ride anymore.
