Comments: It is so devastating to hear about things like this all over the state of Montana. My home. So much of it being "improved" on. No matter how they sugar coat projects like this. It's the environment and heart and soul of this land that pays the ultimate price. Holland lake is so beautiful as it is right now. As it has always been. Not to mention a big habitat for so many animals. It would break my heart to see it be ravaged and built upon. I would never go there again. Because I probably wouldn't be able to afford to stay or camp. The amount of growth Montana has experienced has made it so hard to enjoy simple things I used to be able to. It has become full of people who are just visiting and have no respect for the very special places that we are so lucky to enjoy. I see that the majority of people traveling to Montana have no idea what it is really like and don't care to understand it. Behave badly and leave it worse then when they arrived. Please don't let this happen.
