Comments: The people in Montana are tired of being play things for out of state developers that destroy forest lands and remove the serenity of the places that were once untarnished. We do not need to exploit our forests for the benefit of out of state billionaire conglomerates that only care about profits. Destroying land to put in disgusting new buildings not only removes the soul of the area that once existed, but shows that Montana is no longer for Montanans. This place is not a playground for the rich. Quit appealing to them.
