Comments: Although it feels like we're trying to stop progress... it's more true that Montana is the place where we all were hoping we could escape that very progress we're debating here. I would have to be inclined to say no ... at least until we can, as a citizenry, decide if this kind of development is in the best interest to the everyday resident who may enjoy the natural beauty it provides...without charge or restriction. It's the growing concern of this state. We all see what's happening here.
