Comments: I have been kayaking/camping Holland Lake for the past 22 years. It used to be locals could show up during the week and camp having the place just about to themselves during the week. It has been extremely sad to see it go from first come first serve to pretty much reservation only over the past few years. Even the first come first serve sites are almost never available as people already camping there line up for them first thing in the morning. It is really sad to see how much Holland Lake gets hammered anymore by all the people. I believe Holland Lake should be kept small and pristine like it used to be. I wish they would make it a no-wake zone, allowing only grandfathered in properties to use motors. It is a beautiful small lake perfect for just paddling. I believe turning this gem of a lake into a huge resort is a huge mistake. There are larger lakes all over for this kind of thing. Holland Lake is not one of these places. The amount of people will ruin the beauty that is there. It is really about time to keep Montana like Montana. Please keep Holland Lake small like it should be.
