Comments: Holland Lake Lodge has not shown a commitment to education or public safety in my experiences with them. If you are not a paying customer, you are generally not made to feel welcome at their facility. Boaters are asked not to land at their location if they are not lodge guests. In one of many instances, my elderly mother was denied use of a restroom facility when she needed to take a break during a circumnavigation of the lake. I accept that the lodge should have some say over who sits on the lawn they maintain or who uses their facilities, but their past policies have not demonstrated any real concern for public safety or education, so it feels like those are just buzz words they include in their current proposal to achieve their real goal of attracting more paying customers. I am against any expansion of Holland Lake Lodge's use of public lands.
