Comments: As someone who has canoed and kayaked on Holland Lake many times over the last decades, I can say that the lake is already at capacity. Tripling the number of guests at the Lodge would push this over the edge. Boat traffic, car traffic, noise, dust and pollution would fundamentally alter the experience from a pleasant edge of the wilderness to a plush and quite expensive resort. If you give the developers a green light on this, you will be depriving Montanans of the resource at the same time. The Lodge currently lives in balance with other uses. The proposed expansion would take over from them. Don't do it!
