Comments: Holland Lake is a quiet, semi secluded jewel that provides solitude and a calm lake for ordinary Montanans to come camping and enjoy our beautiful wilderness. I am extremely concerned that with the expansion of the Lodge, the lake will turn into a motorboat haven and be way overused. I'm disappointed and extremely concerned that there is a plan to cut down hundreds of trees. That shows a complete lack of appreciation for Montana's wilderness. I understand the mentality of progress and expansion, but please do NOT allow a large wealthy group of investors to come in and turn a quiet lake into a large resort destination. We need to work together to maintain our wilderness areas, rather than destroying them. Montana is being over-run by wealthy out-of-staters who want to turn the few wilderness gems we still have in Montana, into their large playgrounds. Please limit the cutting of trees, the use of motor boats on the lake, and the number of guests the Lodge can have at one time!!
