Comments: I vehemently oppose this project. Renovating existing Holland Lake structures is understandable, but this level of expansion is abhorrent. Holland Lake is a hidden gem in Montana. My husband and I moved to Montana in 2015 from the Midwest, and the Seeley Lake/Condon areas remain our favorite spots to go hiking and camping. The Holland area is quiet, serene, relatively untouched, quaint, and unique. The number of spots like it in Montana continue to shrink due to corporate greed. Looking through the public comments and those on social media, it is abundantly clear that the majority do not support this project. It will destroy the local community, nature, surrounding campgrounds, and ecosystem. Approving this project is promoting the appropriation of nature and rural communities to create playgrounds for the wealthy. Montana's role is not to solve wealthy people's existential crises at the expense of our local communities. This project in its current form of massive expansion will further contribute to the demise of our cherished nickname "The Last Best Place." Say no to POWDR.
