Comments: As a person that was born and raised in Montana, I don't like the fact that out of staters are coming in and trying to change our state. They leave the state they are living in because they do not like it anymore, yet they come to Montana and try to change it to what they want. We don't want big business/dollars changing Montana into a "destination for the rich and famous". Montana is just what we want it to be. A quiet place that people can afford, not much traffic, a place you don't have to reserve a year in advance. Parts of the state are already becoming that way due to the greediness of landowners and their desire to make a lot of money from out of state buyers. It is my opinion that before any properties are sold to development companies, public comments should be solicited.
