Comments: Holland Lake used to be one of the most quiet, pristine areas in NW Montana. As tourism has exponentially increased the last several years, the area is becoming a zoo. The campgrounds and swimming beach are full all summer, the trailhead parking lot is often spilling back onto the main road to the Lodge, the condition of the road from the bridge to the Lodge has continued to degrade, and the dust in the summer is ridiculous. Increasing the capacity of the Lodge by threefold is only going to exacerbate the issue and lead to increases in everything else- traffic, parking, noise, watercraft on the lake, fishing pressure, degradation of the roads, impact to the trails in the area, etc. Why should a profit-seeking corporation, from out-of-state for all matters, be allowed to destroy the tranquility and natural resources of one of the last best places in our great state?
