Comments: I lived in Montana for the past five years, having left only so that my husband could pursue academic goals. Leaving Montana has been very painful, a pain that I have had to soothe by knowing I will return, even if just for a visit. How devastating it would be to return to see that the wild spaces I (and so many) love have been mowed down to support a fleeting idea of what a "luxury experience" should look like. This development would do what so many others like it have done nationwide-taken away our access to public land and any opportunity to find solace in the outdoors. Please do not allow it to happen. Keep the ecosystem safe from the damage that luxury tourism brings about. Keep Montana beautiful and wild. Please.
