Comments: I OPPOSE the proposed expanded development of Holland Lake Lodge. To me, this seems to be about corporate greed rather than about preserving rural Montana wilderness for both wildlife and humans. The rustic simplicity of the current lodge and surrounding area is a perfect way to disconnect from the stresses of work and other obligations. The people who live here want to preserve the "Last Best Place". The people who visit here, I'm guessing, would like to experience the best that Montana has to offer - not the "modern, high tech" venues they can find elsewhere. Maintenance and improvement to the existing lodge and buildings seems reasonable. Tearing down most of the existing buildings, removing many trees, installing fiber internet, etc are just not necessary or reasonable (unless, of course, you are big business looking for big profits).
