Comments: Holland lake is an example of what makes Montana-Montana. A serene peaceful lake captured with people who appreciate the value of camping. People and Investment groups drive to bring Civilization to the wilderness. The forestry department tans USDA, are to be stewards of the land for the people. Places of this nature will be exclusive to "who can afford". What's next, leasing out acres of public land to the "Yellowstone " followers. Decisions like this is allows a flood of people coming in and doing so much harm than good. I'm not against progress, but how about items that allow the average Montana resident enjoy what we are losing. Local internet into the Bob Marshall? I'm not against internet, but it's for a complex, otherwise it wouldn't be there.

The forestry dept should inquire the locals and regional citizens on this, it is a large impact in Condon. This seems more like Big Government pushing through without 6-8 months of discussion and information on the matter. That's my 2 bits.
