Comments: There is no need to commercialize the national forest anymore than it is already at ski resorts throughout the Rocky Mountain West. The quaint lodge is perfect as is and fits with the natural environment however a large lodge will ruin the forest for generations to come and begin the ultimate demise of rural and natural areas. The enviromental impact of vehicles and people will also place a burden on the lake and surrounding areas that could destroy the natural habitat of many of the flora and fauna of the area.
