Comments: The proposed resort at Holland Lake goes against core Montana values. We are not a state that sells off our assets to the highest bidder. We are not a state that cheapens our natural beauty through commercialization. Core Montana values teach us to share our assets by keeping land public and accessible to all. These same core values give us a deep appreciation for the land and natural ecosystems that have grown scarce in other parts of the country. They are growing scarce precisely because of developments like this proposed resort, which will ultimately defile the landscape to create another curated, fake nature experience for tourists. I stand firmly against this plan and hope other Montanans will remember their core values when considering this building proposal.
