Comments: Holland lake is a very small precious peaceful lake that my family has been enjoying for several years. We've watched the increase of people using Holland lake over the years and the growing pains have been significant. The access road is narrow and barely accommodates the current traffic so an increase in traffic would be unmanageable. This lake is too small to accommodate a tourist resort! It can barely manage the current amount of people discovering it now. Destroying the forest to build a resort would be an environmental disaster that the lake and surrounding area would not likely recover from.

Keep Montana beautiful, and keep out of state investors off of public land!
