Comments: This is not what our state needs, another out of state Corporation wanting to build a business that has no positive impact on our lands and wildlife. Deep pockets should have no place in ruining what most Native Montana people enjoy. You can't even enjoy camping in established areas without having many out of state visitors disrespecting camp hosts and not following camp ground rules now.

I have never done this before but enough is enough. I have unfortunately lived in Utah for the last five months due to my son being treated for Luekemia. The local people talk about how this area has built many places and it has ruined the rural areas. Monetary gain for them does not include respecting the land. It only leads to more land deals and creating more congestion in an area that was never meant to be a small community.
