Comments: I've been hiking Holland lake trail with my family and friends for 20+ years. I wrote my vows with my wife at Holland lake Falls. I hope to hike this trail with my son, and my Son's children one day. I worry that the natural beauty and wildlife will fade much like other over developed natural areas in my home state.

Part of what makes the Seeley and Swan Valleys so special is that the traffic is relatively low. Doing things to advertise and boost visitation is the opposite of what our area needs. Look at the Blackfoot river for example, it's so over commercialized, that locals can hardly enjoy the beauty and peacefulness that it once was. It's a shame, but I fear that the health of this river will is being pushed to its limits.

Expansion and further development of this area will only prove to be a detriment to this beautiful piece of Montana. I hope you reconsider...
