Comments: The Lodge and it's arrangement currently exists with an already encroaching presence on wildlife and the ecosystems surrounding the lake as well as the lake itself. Any further development would only exacerbate this encroachment.

Not to mention the stupidity of humanity. The last time I was there an out of state person was complaining to management at the lodge that a bear was blocking the path to the waterfall and wanted to know when they were going to remove it. The last thing Holland lake and it's ecosystem needs is to create more of an attraction for these kinds of moronic travelers.
