Comments: To whom it may concern,

When do we say enough is enough? This project will only benefit outside interests, while providing a small increase in local spending "benefitting" the community, who has not asked to be benefitted. The Swan valley is celebrated as a remote corridor where time stands still, and this project absolutely upends the spirit of this. This is a flagrant example of Montana's wildness being sold for top dollar to groups that will reap the vast majority of the profit.

I absolutely say "no" to this project.
