Comments: The pristine quality of the Holland Lake area is the one of only a few examples of what makes Montana, Montana. To allow an expansion of the proposed size be put in place would not have environmental impacts to an already incredible water source but the area surrounding it. Holland lake is one a of a few places left for locals and residents of surrounding communities to visit in quiet peace and allowing a resort to be put in will destroy the tranquility of this mountain hamlet. As a former US military service member, US Forest Service wild land fire fighter I strongly encourage the Forest Service to reconsider allowing any form of this exploit of Holland Lake of this manner. The Federal government needs to finally realize and understand they are selling local people's culture and quality of life to the highest bidder if this is allowed to happen. Do not let the the sale of this property and a new lease be allowed to any corporation willing to tear down historical buildings to build anything not in line with our historic Montana values.
