Comments: Bob Marshall was a great man, along with a great many others promoting to protect lands for the benefit and enjoyment for all. I fully understand and participate in Montana's second largest economy of recreation and tourism. There is fine line between line increased fashionable, functionable facilities and preserving these open spaces as well as the history that these visionaries led us up to with. What I truly ask is that a Forestry department doesn't go forward without serious reflection of what Clifford Pinchot, George 'Bird' Grinnell and Bob Marshall would have wanted and is appropriate. Montana is a gem, and there is no greater importance than protecting that!
