Comments: i am not a resident of Montana but have visited the area in question. This project appears to be too large for the area. My questions are where are the environmental impact studies and have they been made available to the public? What kind of wildlife will be impacted and how? Why have there been no more public meetings than what is indicated? If it is forest service or blm land, should not people of the state have a say in what gets developed here. This project at the very least should be scaled down to something appropriate to what the area will support. I say scrap it. It is too big and too commercialized for Montana and the area.
