I understand Montana is growing and changing, but I feel that a change this big is not the right direction to go. Where I agree that the buildings should be updated to accommodate a business, I don't feel that the lodge should be enlarged to accommodate 150+ guests. Public land should remain in the public's hand and businesses in my opinion should not build bigger structures to benefit their business with public land. I do not want to see this expansion pass because it is in public land. Private land obviously is one thing, but public land is very different. Articles I have read have compared this expansion to ski resorts, but ski resorts are much more low impact and have more opportunities for the public to continue to use the land.
