Comments: I strongly oppose the planned expansion of the lodge of Holland Lake. As it sits now on public land, it's an important spot culturally to residents of western Montana. Heck there is even a full Music album after holland lake! To deny the public full access to this resource and ruin the wild character of the area would be both a travesty as well as a serious dereliction of the duty that the Forrest service has been charged with. Going back to Gifford Pinchot the mantra has always been the most benefit for the most people for the longest time. How does irrevocably changing the landscape and making it a de facto exclusive space for the wealthy. Echoes of paws up "America's private national park" are already on the horizon
