Comments: I do not think this project should go forward. Holland Lake Lodge is a beautiful and historic building that provides accessibility to the natural areas around it without unduly impinging on local wildlife habitats. Replacing it with something more along the lines of a resort destination would destroy the character of the lodge and dramatically increase the impact on local wildlife. Montana's tourist value isn't in the number of visitors it can accommodate or the number of amenities it can offer them; it's in the beauty of it's wild places, the character and history of it's manmade ones, and the unique interaction of the two at places like Holland Lake.
