Comments: I for awhile grew up going to the holland lake lodge and climbing the trail very close to the campsites and the cabins. I would watch people get married across the lake and it was so loud it was like your were apart of their moment too. People laughing, parting and having a good time. Me and my cousins would lay out on the lake as late as we could and enjoy the moment as much as we could laughing and giggling and eating out grandmas muffins. I always imagined myself getting married there myself when I grew up and still hope that one day I can with all the natural beauty still there and not a bunch of buildings and getting rid of what little peaceful places that we have left in Montana, I know I'm not the only one with memories there and I would like them to remain intact for when I get to take my kids there one day.
