Comments: I find it abhorrent that big money continues to weasel its way into public lands with the intention of turning Montana's wilderness areas into large revenue streams regardless of its impact to the environment. It is absolutely asinine that it seems likely there will not be an investigation into the environmental impacts of the proposed expansion. I add my voice to those who are calling for such an investigation with the addendum that it might need to be investigated as to why the Forest Service seems so nonchalant about enforcing its own regulations in this regard. It's also shameful how quiet and last minute all this has been in regards to presenting it to the public. That almost looks like it was known this would not be popular.

To put it succinctly, I oppose the expansion, especially if no investigation into environmental impact is going to occur.
