Comments: This is the problem and it is the explanation and a perversion of the land. I've watch this happen in Washington state where big corporations come in and buy up big tracks of land and make it a exclusive or difficult to use. Plus they destroy all historical things along the way just to replace it with a sign telling you it was once there. This is not what forest service land should be used for what so ever. If this type of stuff happens or continues the last best place will become the last place anyone will want to or can afford to go.
