Comments: Please do not allow the commercialization of our beautiful and beloved lands. There are few places left where families can enjoy together what Nature has to offer, with wilderness AND accessibility. Holland lake has been one of those places for my family and it would be so sad to see it exploited for use by those who are able to pay top dollar. We recently moved out of state, but my heart is still in beautiful Montana. I have lived in many beautiful places, but Montana stands out above them all, not only for it's beauty, but for the accessibility to the general public. It is special and I miss it everyday. We lived in Montana 10 years while my husband was a student and we had very little extra money. But we were happy because we were still able to enjoy and recreate in the great outdoors. Nature is the great equalizer. The forest and rivers and lakes demand very little from you, just your quiet respect and reverence. Please don't take that away by turning this beloved area into a resort catering to the wealthy. I have been to Park City many times; their values are not Montana values.
