Comments: I get it....It's all about the money. But this is getting ridiculous!!! It pushes the wildlife further back into the mountains. It brings in crowds which to a Montanan is 3-4 people in front of you in line. It brings trash because these "wealthy" individuals are so self absorbed that they care about the environment we've grown up to respect and I've seen garbage everywhere. It'll raise our taxes because I'm assuming the county or even the government is some way providing some assistance and they have to be services brought in such as trash, water, power and the tax payer is going to end up fronting some of the costs. I speak about these things from experience because I've working in the industry my entire career and the last thing this state needs is more "wealthy" people finding out about Montana and buying up prime hunting/fishing land along with driving the prices up for the locals. Case in point: Ted Turner, the Koch Brothers, Paradise Valley, Big Fork Hollywood elites. We are people of simple means and it's getting to a point where it is nearly impossible to make ends meet. Look at what has happened to Bozeman these past 8 - 10 yrs to name just one place; and Missoula is built out and getting very crowded. There needs to be restrictions voted in where the Government should not lease or sell any land for these type of changes unless it benefits everyone (locals) such as an affordable ski resort (look at what happened to Big Sky in the past 30 yrs). This is my opinion only, but as a Montanan I think there are quite a few people out there with the same thoughts.
