Comments: My family has camped at Holland Lake for generations. The lake water quality has diminished over the years and we try to come early in the summer to avoid swimmers itch and algae blooms. This is a very small area and this giant resort is just a ridiculous idea. Tearing down the lodge and cabins which are an integral part of the area and replacing them with posh high end resort buildings is a blatant takeover of a natural resource by a large corporation in search of high dollar tourist money. Where does all the sewage go! When the lake is so crowded with boats, canoes, tubes and swimmers will you need to stand in line to dip your toes in the water or hike to the falls? Why would an environmental impact study be excluded, isn't that something that needs to be done given the size of the area and the scale of the development? As a lifelong resident of Montana I am categorically opposed to this abomination.
