Comments: Hello, I am concerned with the future habitat quality of Holland Lake, there needs to be an extensive assessment of the environmental impact on the new development plan. As the plan currently stands, the environmental impact will be large. The Bob Marshall Wilderness essentially borders Holland Lake recreational area where wildlife move in and out of annually. Wildlife needs these lower elevation riparian habitats for food resources that are not as readily available in the (higher elevation) wilderness area. More human activity at Holland Lake will continue to push wildlife out.

Please, do not allow Holland Lake development to the extent that will destroy this habitat. This is special place that should not be utilized for profit.

Thank you,

Mary
