Comments: Money must not rule everything. The United States government has the power to hold some land in trust for future generations - without end - and it should take extra-special care of land that is already forested. We do understand now that FORESTS are one of our only, best hopes to restore the health of our planet. Let's not pretend that we DON'T know this! Any governmental group who is charged with protection of our natural wealth - forests, bodies of water, land that is not contaminated by poisons - MUST do everything in their power now and henceforth to protect and enhance that irreplaceable wealth that belongs to every human (and animal) on Earth. In America, we MUST all do our part! What do we love? Is it money, status, expensive objects, cars, resorts open only to the extremely wealthy? Or do we love MOTHER EARTH, upon whose power to grow and nurture we depend. Will you stand up for all the land that is unharmed, and continue to protect it with all your might?

Please keep Holland Lake "un-developed." We desperately need such places! Our souls need such places. The importance of land without "commerce" cannot be overstated. It is our life-blood.
