Comments: I don't live in the area, but my own home town is being changed by "out of staters" also. They seem to want to come change everything. Bigger is always better to them. I would like to see LESS developments in rural Montana. Simple life is better than bigger. That's my opinion. I would stand with the people of the Holland Lake project who object to this big development. It will change the lake for sure. Our own lake has so much traffic on it now, not as peaceful as 10 years ago. I live in rural Montana, because I want to live in a rural, beautiful area without developments changing the landscape, waters, or style of living. I would vote no development of THAT size.
